Title	IMDb Link	Release Year	Country of Origin (Production)	IMDb Logline	IMDb Poster	IMDb Still	Dall-E 3 Image	DALL- E 3 Grounded Prompt	DALL-E 3 Logline	DALL-E 3 Poster	ChatGPT STILL	GPT Still prompt	GPT Logline	GPT Poster	GPT Title	GPT Image - "Lesbian" omitted	GPT Poster - "Lesbian" omitted
							DATASET 1	DATASET 2	DATASET 3	DATASET 4	DATASET 5	DATASET 6	DATASET 7	DATASET 8	DATASET 9	DATASET 10	DATASET 11
							Create an image inspired by the Lesbian film [title].		Create a logline for a Lesbian film based on this first image?	Create a film poster for a Lesbian film with the logline: [add logline based on generated image]. Be sure to include a title.	Create a still inspired by the Lesbian film [title].	Can you share how you adapted the prompt for this image?	Create a logline for a Lesbian film based on the image?	Create a film poster for a Lesbian film with the logline [add logline from DATASET 7] Be sure to add a title		Create an image based on this: [add log line from DATASET 7]	Create a film poster for: [title from DATASET 9]
Portrait of a Lady on Fire	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt8613070/	2019	France	In 18th-century France, a painter is commissioned to paint a wedding portrait of a reluctant bride-to-be, and the two women form an intense romantic bond.				A romantic, painterly scene inspired by 18th-century France, set on a windswept cliff overlooking the sea at sunset. Two women in flowing period dresses stand close to each other, one with dark curly hair and the other with blonde hair in a bun. They exchange an intense, emotional gaze, their hands nearly touching. The atmosphere is intimate and quiet, with warm, golden light from the sunset casting soft shadows. The ocean in the background is calm, with waves gently crashing on the shore. The color palette is muted and elegant — soft blues, creams, and earthy tones. The image evokes longing, intimacy, and quiet passion.	On the rugged coast of 18th-century France, a reclusive painter is commissioned to capture the portrait of a noblewoman promised to another—but as brush meets canvas, a forbidden connection ignites, threatening both their futures and awakening a love neither dared imagine.			"A frame from Portrait of a Lady on Fire captures two women in the soft glow of a single candle, subtly illuminated by its warm light as they share a moment in a muted, almost timeless room. The contrast of warm golden hues from the candle against the cool blues and earthy tones of the women's attire and the room builds depth, with one woman gazing toward the other as she stands adorned with a palette and brush, their expressions and poses speaking volumes in this intimate, painterly scene."	When a reserved heiress hires a quiet painter to sit for a portrait, their candlelit sittings kindle a forbidden romance that forces them to choose between duty, reputation—and the life they secretly long for.		Candlight Portrait
Carol	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt2402927/	2015	United Kingdom; United States	An aspiring photographer develops an intimate relationship with an older woman in 1950s New York, defying social norms.				A 1950s-inspired winter café scene featuring two elegant women. One woman, blonde and poised, wears a fur-trimmed beige coat, red lipstick, and vintage gloves. She sits gracefully, holding a cup of coffee. Across from her is a younger woman with short dark hair, wearing a beret and a plaid coat, gazing at the blonde woman with quiet emotion. The café is softly lit with warm, vintage tones, and a snowy city scene is visible through the frosted window behind them. The mood is intimate, romantic, and cinematic, evoking a classic mid-century aesthetic.	In the snow-draped winter of 1954 New York, a chance encounter between a reserved young photographer and a poised, enigmatic socialite in a quiet café sparks a forbidden connection that threatens to upend both their carefully constructed lives.			A 1950s film photo captures a tender moment between two light-skinned women, their gazes meeting through a rain-splattered department store window. One, an older blonde in a camel wool coat and red scarf, gazes pensively at the younger brunette in a teal coat, while the soft glow from interior lighting and blurred shelves create a nostalgic, intimate setting. Photorealistic, portrait orientation, shallow depth of field, soft film grain, muted pastel palette, warm interior bokeh, cinematic framing, moody low-key lighting, subtle color grading, natural skin tones, no celebrity likenesses, do not copy any specific frame from the film.	In 1950s New York, a guarded socialite and a young department-store clerk spark an illicit attraction through a rain-streaked window — and must risk their reputations to choose love over the lives they're expected to lead.		Through the Rain
Blue is the Warmest Color	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt2278871/	2013	France (Belgium; Spain Co-Prods)	Adèle's life changes when she meets Emma, a young woman with blue hair, who helps her discover desire and her identity.				An emotionally intimate scene inspired by romantic cinema, featuring two young women sitting closely on a park bench during early morning. One woman has flowing blue hair, symbolizing emotional depth and passion, while the other has natural brown hair. They are looking into each other's eyes with tender expressions, hands gently touching. The background features soft trees with autumn leaves and a cool blue sky. The lighting is cinematic and painterly, with a subtle blue-toned palette evoking a moody and introspective atmosphere. The style is naturalistic, focused on emotion and connection.	In the quiet aftermath of heartbreak, a guarded art student and a free-spirited musician with striking blue hair form an unexpected connection on a park bench, discovering that love can bloom in the spaces between silence, sorrow, and self-discovery.			In a tender, intimate moment captured in 35mm film, two young women sit close together with their foreheads touching, eyes gently closed. One has short, tousled brown hair, cradling the other's head, while the blonde with wavy hair appears vulnerable, both bathed in soft lighting against a softly blurred café backdrop, where raindrops run down the window and golden bokeh lights add warmth.	When a chance, rain-soaked encounter in a dim café sparks a fragile romance between a guarded art student and a free-spirited barista, their secret intimacy forces them to confront family expectations and a buried past — and to decide whether love is worth upending the lives they've planned.		Rain Kissed
Bound	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0115736/	1996	United States	A woman seduces her gangster boyfriend's mistress to steal millions of mob money in a neo-noir thriller of love and betrayal.				A cinematic, neo-noir style image of two women in a tense and intimate moment inside a dimly lit apartment at night. The room is lit by horizontal Venetian blinds casting sharp shadows across the walls and floor. One woman wears a black leather jacket and has short dark hair, standing confidently with a protective posture. The other woman wears a white tank top and has short blonde hair, looking up at her with a mix of trust and fear. In the background, an old safe is slightly open with bundles of cash spilling out, suggesting a heist. The scene has a moody, 1990s film noir atmosphere, with dramatic lighting and a suspenseful tone.	After stealing a fortune from a ruthless crime syndicate, a hardened ex-con and her secret lover must navigate a web of betrayal, desire, and violence—where trust is the only thing more dangerous than the truth.			In a suspenseful neo-noir scene, two women share a charged, intimate moment under cool green lighting, with sharply contrasting shadows casting mystery around them. One woman, in a black blazer, gazes intently as she leans towards the other, a red-clad figure, while a glowing cigarette smolders between them and a rain-drenched cityscape glows faintly in the background.	A hardened fixer agrees to help a magnetic stranger steal a mob ledger — but when their risky con becomes a dangerous romance, desire and betrayal collide, and trusting each other may be the deadliest move either of them ever makes.		Ledger & Lies
The Watermelon Woman	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0118125/	1996	United States	A young Black lesbian filmmaker sets out to make a documentary about a forgotten 1930s Black actress known only as 'The Watermelon Woman.'				A 1990s urban street scene inspired by the film 'The Watermelon Woman'. A young Black lesbian filmmaker stands on a sidewalk in Philadelphia, holding a vintage camcorder and wearing 90s-style clothing: denim overalls, a graphic T-shirt, and sneakers. Behind her is an indie video store with colorful movie posters and handwritten signs in the window. The scene includes small details like VHS tapes, rainbow pride stickers, and flyers promoting queer film events. The mood is warm and nostalgic, with soft lighting evoking a late afternoon sun. The overall aesthetic is intimate, artistic, and rooted in 90s queer culture.	In 1990s Philadelphia, a bold young Black lesbian filmmaker sets out to document the untold stories of queer women of color, uncovering a buried legacy that challenges her identity, her community, and the power of who gets remembered.			A 35mm film still from The Watermelon Woman (1996) features a young African American woman relaxing by a pool at sunset, holding a ripe slice of watermelon with both hands. The warm light accentuates her serene expression and vibrant outfit, while a laughing woman and a pool with reflective water create a relaxed, nostalgic backdrop, all framed in striking, textured film grain and soft, muted colors.	During a slow, sunlit summer by a backyard pool, a guarded Black woman and her free-spirited friend fall into an unexpected romance that forces them to choose between safety and being seen.		Be Seen
But I'm a Cheerleader	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0179116/	1999	United States	A high school cheerleader is sent to a conversion therapy camp when her parents suspect she's a lesbian.				A colorful, surreal scene inspired by the film 'But I'm a Cheerleader'. The setting is a hyper-feminine 1950s-style reform school with bright pink and pastel blue tones. A young woman wearing a classic cheerleader outfit (pink and white) stands confidently in front of a kitschy, dollhouse-like building. Surrounding her are exaggerated, vintage-style decorations—heart-shaped bushes, retro appliances, and stereotypical gendered symbols like ironing boards and footballs. The mood is both whimsical and satirical, with a dreamy, slightly surreal atmosphere that critiques gender roles. The lighting is bright and artificial, like a staged set.	At a pastel-hued reeducation camp where femininity is mandatory and rebellion comes in glitter and pom-poms, a defiant cheerleader begins to unravel the absurd world around her—discovering that true identity can't be color-coded or choreographed.			In a cute pastel-hued room, two cheerleaders share a moment of interaction. One with blonde hair, dressed in a vibrant pink uniform, holds oversized pom-poms while gazing curiously, and the other sporting reddish-brown hair in a mint green costume, smirks knowingly, resting her hands on her lap. The room, adorned with motivational posters, triangular flags, and soft lighting, creates a harmonious backdrop that complements the cheerful, animated exchange between the two. Photorealistic film-still style, soft warm lighting, shallow depth of field, cinematic composition, pastel pink and mint teal color palette, high detail, 3:2 aspect ratio.	In a pastel-perfect cheer room, a curious new recruit and the squad's quietly knowing teammate spark an unexpected romance — forcing them to choose between the safety of the routine and the risk of cheering for who they really are.		Cheer For Keeps		Imagine Me & You	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0421994/	2005	United Kingdom; Germany	At her wedding, a bride realizes she's in love with another woman she just met, complicating her seemingly perfect life.				A romantic and cinematic scene inspired by the film 'Imagine Me & You'. Two women stand close together in a beautiful flower shop, surrounded by vibrant floral arrangements. One woman has short blonde hair and wears a stylish coat, while the other has long brunette hair and wears a soft, elegant dress. They are sharing a tender moment, looking into each other's eyes with love and warmth. The setting is softly lit, with sunlight filtering through large windows, creating a dreamy, emotional atmosphere. The scene conveys a feeling of unexpected love, intimacy, and connection.	When a soon-to-be bride unexpectedly locks eyes with a charming florist during a wedding consultation, a single glance blossoms into a love that challenges everything she thought she knew about happiness, commitment, and the meaning of true connection.			Two adult women standing barefoot on a sandy beach at golden hour, holding hands and looking into each other's eyes. One wears a simple off-white sundress, the other a light floral sundress. Warm, cinematic golden-hour lighting with soft backlight and gentle lens flare; intimate, tender mood. Shallow depth of field with soft bokeh, distant sailboat on the horizon, natural skin tones, subtle film grain and soft contrast. Framing: medium close-up (waist to head), eye-level, centered composition, slight ocean negative space. Photorealistic, 35mm lens look, f/2.8, high detail, cinematic color grading (warm amber highlights, soft teal shadows). Do not depict or resemble any real actors or public figures; original faces only.	A reserved graphic designer returns to her coastal hometown and falls into a tender, urgent summer romance with a free-spirited local—forcing her to choose between the safe life she planned and the love that finally feels like home.		Home Like Summer
Saving Face	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0384504/	2004	United States	A Chinese-American surgeon struggles to balance her relationship with her girlfriend and her pregnant, traditional mother.				A romantic, heartfelt scene inspired by the film 'Saving Face', set in a cozy New York City apartment during the early 2000s. Two Asian-American women in their late 20s sit closely on a couch, holding hands and sharing a quiet, intimate moment. One is wearing a stylish but casual outfit, while the other is dressed in medical scrubs, hinting at her career as a surgeon. The apartment is warmly lit with string lights and decorated with books, family photos, and subtle nods to Chinese-American culture, like red paper lanterns and a tea set. Outside the window, the soft glow of city lights adds to the mood of love and secrecy.	In the quiet of a bustling New York City night, a reserved surgical resident and a free-spirited artist navigate the fragile space between tradition and authenticity—discovering that love, like identity, must be lived out loud, even when the world isn't ready to listen.			Two East Asian women in a cozy Chinatown kitchen at sunset, embracing lovingly — one wearing light blue scrubs, the other in a simple white dress. The woman in scrubs gently holds the other's face as they gaze into each other's eyes. Soft golden-hour backlight streams through a window with blurred neon Chinatown signs outside. Intimate, tender expressions; waist-up composition; cinematic photographic realism; shallow depth of field, 50mm lens, f/1.8; warm orange color grading, soft film grain, natural skin tones, high resolution. Do not depict or resemble any specific actor or an exact frame from an existing film.	When a hardworking nurse and a free-spirited shop clerk fall in love, their furtive relationship forces them to confront cultural duty, career pressures, and the courage it takes to choose each other.		Between Shifts
The Handmaiden	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt4016934/	2016	South Korea	In 1930s Korea, a con man hires a handmaiden to swindle a Japanese heiress, but unexpected emotions complicate the plan.				A cinematic and atmospheric scene inspired by the film 'The Handmaiden'. Two elegant women in traditional 1930s Korean and Japanese clothing stand closely in an ornate, dimly lit room. The room features dark wood paneling, antique furniture, and delicate paper lanterns casting soft, moody light. One woman is wearing a delicate hanbok with floral embroidery, and the other is dressed in a refined kimono. Their expressions are intense and intimate, suggesting a secret emotional bond. Cherry blossoms drift subtly through an open window, and a sense of suspense and romantic tension fills the scene. The overall aesthetic is refined, dramatic, and emotionally charged, with strong East Asian period drama elements.	In 1930s Korea under Japanese occupation, a cunning handmaiden and a repressed noblewoman form a dangerous bond of passion and betrayal within the walls of a secluded estate—where every glance could mean desire or doom.			Cinematic still of two East Asian women in an intimate, tender moment inside a lavish 1930s-style bedroom inspired by East Asian interiors. One woman wears an emerald silk kimono with subtle gold embroidery and sits on the edge of a bed; the other wears a dark navy vintage dress with a white lace collar and sits beside her. They face each other in a close medium shot, hands gently touching, intense but quiet eye contact. Warm, low-key practical lighting from a table lamp and diffused window light creates rich reds, deep greens, and warm gold highlights with teal shadows. Soft rim light separates profiles. Textures highly detailed (silk, lace, wallpaper, porcelain). Composition: 3/4 profile faces, shallow depth of field, 35mm-equivalent portrait framing, cinematic color grading, subtle film grain, high-resolution photorealism. Mood: intimate, tense, romantic — suggestive but tasteful, non-explicit. Include period-appropriate props	In 1930s East Asia, a guarded heiress hires a quiet handmaiden — when a secret, forbidden attraction ignites between them, they must decide whether to risk everything for a love that could free them or ruin them both.		Paper Lanterns
Pariah	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt1233334/	2011	United States	A Brooklyn teenager embraces her identity as a lesbian, navigating love and family expectations.				A young Black teenage girl stands in her small bedroom at night, illuminated by moody, colorful lighting in purples and blues. She is looking at herself in a mirror, dressed in slightly masculine clothing, capturing a sense of introspection and emotional depth. The room is expressive and personal, with poetry written on sticky notes attached to the wall. A small pride flag is subtly visible, either tucked under a pillow or hanging in the background. Outside the window, the lights of Brooklyn's urban landscape glow. The atmosphere is quiet, intimate, and reflective, inspired by themes of self-discovery and queer identity.	In the quiet of her Brooklyn bedroom, a creative Black teen secretly crafts poetry and identity beneath society's radar—until a spark of self-expression threatens to upend the world she's been hiding from.			Portrait of a young Black woman in her early 20s with short natural hair, sitting on a bed in a small bedroom at twilight. Warm orange light from partially opened blinds falls across her face, casting dramatic shadow patterns; cool blue evening visible through the window. Intense, reflective gaze, intimate and cinematic mood. Outfit: denim jacket over a hoodie; posters on the wall in soft focus. Medium close-up, shallow depth of field, filmic grain, natural skin tones, muted color palette with teal shadows and warm highlights, soft contrast, photorealistic, 2:3 aspect ratio.	In the quiet of her Brooklyn bedroom, a creative Black teen secretly crafts poetry and identity beneath society's radar—until a spark of self-expression threatens to upend the world she's been hiding from. "		Bedroom Sonnets
Go Fish	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0109913/?ref_=fn_	1994	United States	A playful indie about Chicago lesbians exploring friendship, dating, and queer identity.				A black-and-white, indie-style scene inspired by the 1990s lesbian film 'Go Fish'. The image shows two young women sitting close together on a park bench, wearing 90s grunge fashion—one in a flannel shirt and jeans, the other in a tank top and denim shorts. They are gazing at each other with intimate expressions, suggesting a growing romantic connection. The background includes minimalistic urban elements like a brick wall with posters and a tree-lined path. The overall tone is raw, emotional, and authentic, with a vintage film grain effect to reflect the indie cinema style of the 90s.	In a gritty 90s cityscape, two young women from opposite sides of the queer scene forge an unexpected connection on a park bench—what begins as a fleeting glance becomes a quiet rebellion against loneliness, fear, and the rules of their chosen community.			35mm film still of two adult women sitting on a weathered wooden pier at dusk, engaged in an intimate, candid conversation. Warm orange sunset backlight contrasts with cool blue reflections on a calm lake; blurred city skyline bokeh in the background. One woman wearing a checked flannel shirt and jeans with short hair; the other wearing a denim vest and jeans with long wavy hair — natural, minimal makeup, relaxed poses, leaning toward each other. Medium shot, eye-level, cinematic composition (rule of thirds), shallow depth of field, soft filmic highlights. Strong film grain, light scratches and subtle vignetting for a nostalgic vintage 1990s indie look. Photorealistic, high detail, authentic texture and natural skin tones. Aspect ratio 2:3.	When two young women strike up an easy friendship on a lakeside pier, their quiet evenings together blossom into something deeper — forcing them to choose between the safe futures they've planned and risking everything for a first, uncertain love.		Borrowed Evenings		The Incredibly True Adventures of Two Gi	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0113416/	1995	United States	Two teenage girls from different backgrounds fall in love, defying social expectations and family pressures.				A romantic and heartwarming scene inspired by the 1990s lesbian film 'The Incredibly True Adventures of Two Girls in Love'. Depict two teenage girls in love, one with short, tousled brunette hair and a tomboyish style, wearing a flannel shirt and jeans; the other with long blonde hair and a more preppy outfit, wearing a light sweater and skirt. They are sitting on the hood of a car at sunset, in a suburban or small-town setting, sharing headphones and laughing together. The atmosphere is tender and nostalgic, with warm lighting and soft pastel tones.	In a quiet suburban town, a free-spirited tomboy and a sheltered honor student forge an unexpected romance over mixtapes and sunset drives—challenging the labels that define them and discovering a love worth risking everything for.			In this serene moment, two young adult women stand hand-in-hand on a well-kept lawn, their eyes locked in mutual affection as the golden glow of the setting sun softly illuminates their faces. The setting is a quiet suburban neighborhood with simple brick homes and lush greenery, creating a peaceful backdrop for their tender connection. Emphasize warm, filmic golden-hour lighting, soft shadows, shallow depth of field, and a cinematic, naturalistic photographic look. Medium shot, photorealistic, subtle color grading.	One golden summer evening in a quiet suburb, two young women from different worlds fall in love — and must decide whether to protect the comfortable lives they've been handed or risk everything to be honest about who they truly are.		Golden Evening
Fire	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0116308/	1996	India; Canada	Two Indian women in loveless marriages find comfort and passion in each other, defying tradition.				Two Indian women in traditional sarees, seated closely near a window in an old Indian home, bathed in warm golden light. One woman gently touches the other's hand, their eyes meeting with quiet intensity and affection. The setting features traditional Indian architecture with carved wooden furniture and stone walls. A flickering diya lamp glows softly on a shelf nearby, casting shadows on the walls. The scene is filled with subtle fire symbolism and emotional warmth, representing themes of forbidden love, longing, and liberation. Earthy tones and vibrant sarees in red and orange dominate the composition.	In a quiet, tradition-bound Indian household, two women—tied by duty but drawn by love—discover an unexpected intimacy that challenges centuries of silence, igniting a secret world where longing becomes their only rebellion.			A cinematic still of two South Asian women sharing a tender moment in a warmly lit apartment at night. One woman sits on the floor in a deep red saree with simple jewelry and a small bindi; the other stands beside her in a mustard-yellow saree, gently holding her hand. Soft golden candlelight and warm window glow from city lights behind sheer curtains cast gentle, low-key illumination across their faces. Composition: three-quarter view, intimate framing, soft shallow depth of field, subtle film grain, medium focal length (35mm-50mm feel), natural skin tones, warm amber color grade, high photographic realism, non-explicit, respectful, emotive, quiet mood. Do not depict any identifiable actor or copyrighted poster likeness. No nudity, no text, no logos.	A stolen, candlelit moment between two South Asian women awakens a love that forces them to choose between duty and themselves — and sparks a quiet, dangerous revolution inside the family that raised them.		Quiet Revolution		Gia	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0123865/	1998	United States	The story of Gia Carangi, a top fashion model in the late 1970s who struggles with fame, love, and addiction.				An image inspired by the film 'Gia', capturing the moody and emotional aesthetic of late 1970s high fashion. A striking, androgynous female model with short dark hair, smoky eye makeup, and a bold, melancholic expression is seated in front of a large mirror in a dimly lit dressing room. Her reflection shows vulnerability and depth. She's wearing a loosely draped silk robe, partially open, hinting at both sensuality and fragility. The room is filled with soft golden lighting, cigarette smoke curling in the air, vintage fashion items scattered around. The overall mood is raw, intimate, and cinematic, evoking the themes of identity, love, and emotional turmoil from the era.	In the smoky backstage haze of 1979 New York, a rising androgynous model battles addiction, identity, and the haunting pull of her past—until an unexpected love with a soft-spoken makeup artist forces her to choose between self-destruction and something terrifyingly real.			Photorealistic cinematic still: two women in a smoky backstage dressing room with an 1980s vibe. Foreground woman: tousled dark waves, leather jacket slipping off one shoulder, wearing a black bustier, intense, thoughtful gaze toward the other. Background woman: short pixie haircut in profile, warm golden rim light on her face. Low-key, moody lighting with a single soft back spotlight, shallow depth of field (85mm, f/1.4 feel), soft haze and visible film grain. Warm teal-orange color grade (teal shadows, warm highlights), natural skin textures, realistic filmic skin tones, high resolution, 16:9 aspect ratio. No logos, no identifiable public figures.	In the smoky backstage world of 1980s Manhattan, an up-and-coming model's controlled life unravels when she falls for a magnetic performer—forcing her to choose between the career that protects her and the woman who makes her want to live.		Velvet Smoke
Desert Hearts	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt0089015/	1985	United States	In 1950s Nevada, a professor awaiting a divorce finds herself falling in love with a free-spirited younger woman.				A romantic and cinematic desert landscape inspired by the 1980s lesbian film 'Desert Hearts'. Two women stand close together in an intimate moment near a rustic motel, with vintage 1950s cars parked nearby. The scene captures a tender sunset glow casting warm tones over the Nevada desert. One woman has short dark hair and wears a retro 1950s-style shirt and trousers, while the other has blonde wavy hair in a vintage dress. Their body language is emotional and affectionate, reflecting a blossoming romance. The background includes red rock formations, desert brush, and a lonely highway leading into the horizon.	"In the sun-bleached quiet of 1950s Nevada, a reserved professor on the verge of divorce finds unexpected passion and freedom when she meets a free-spirited ranch hand at a roadside motel — a chance encounter that ignites a love neither of them saw coming."			This film photograph depicts two women in soft desert twilight, exchanging glances as the golden glow from the setting sun bathes them near a motel pool. One woman wears a light blue sundress, the other a cream blouse and beige trousers; both are framed by the vintage, neon-lit "Desert Inn" sign and the distant mountains, with muted pastels and warm tones that capture a nostalgic, serene mood.	At a neon-lit desert motel, a guarded visitor and a free-spirited local begin a summer affair that forces them to choose between the safety of what's expected and the risk of being true to themselves.		Between Neon and Sand
Mosquita y Mari	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt1978480/?ref_=nv_	2012	United States	Two young Chicanas in East L.A. form a close friendship that blossoms into something deeper.				A warm, cinematic scene inspired by the film 'Mosquita y Mari'. Two teenage Latina girls sit side by side on the edge of a sidewalk in a quiet, working-class neighborhood in East Los Angeles. The sunset casts golden light over their faces, creating a soft, intimate mood. One girl has long dark hair and wears a simple hoodie, the other has a ponytail and denim jacket. Their body language shows a deep, quiet bond — a mix of friendship and longing. The background features modest houses, palm trees, and a sense of community. The overall style is emotional, naturalistic, and evocative of indie coming-of-age cinema.	"In a sun-drenched corner of East LA, two teenage girls from different worlds find themselves drawn into an unspoken connection — a tender coming-of-age story about friendship, identity, and the quiet intensity of first love."			Cinematic photorealistic still of two Latina women (ages 20–22) sitting close on a low concrete wall by a chain-link fence in a residential Los Angeles neighborhood at golden hour. Warm late-afternoon light, shallow depth of field, subtle foreground foliage blur, soft rim light and slight lens flare. Early-2000s casual wardrobe (denim jacket, simple dress, visible backpack strap). Medium shot, widescreen 2.39:1 aspect ratio, emulate 35mm film grain (Kodak Portra style), natural skin tones, warm-muted color grade, intimate and reflective mood. Tiny caption lower-left: "Inspired by Mosquita y Mari". No recognizable actors; no sexual content; both clearly adults.	When two young Latina women strike up a quiet, electric friendship on a Los Angeles concrete wall at golden hour, their growing love forces them to choose between the safety of family expectations and the risk of becoming who they truly are.		Wall of Light
The Miseducation of Cameron Post	https://www.imdb.com/title/tt6257174/	2018	United Kingdom; United States	After being caught with another girl, a teenager is sent to a conversion therapy center, where she befriends fellow misfits.				A 1990s rural American setting with a teenage girl standing alone in a grassy field at sunset. She has short, tousled dirty blonde hair, wearing a vintage denim jacket over a plaid shirt and faded jeans. Her expression is contemplative and introspective, as if she's on a journey of self-discovery. The background includes an old farmhouse and a distant forest line, with soft golden sunlight casting long shadows. The overall mood is quiet, emotional, and reflective, capturing the feeling of adolescence and identity in a conservative small-town environment.	In a quiet 1990s Midwestern town, a rebellious teenage girl grapples with her identity after being sent to live with conservative relatives—finding solace in the open fields, forbidden friendships, and the freedom she carves for herself beneath the wide, unjudging sky.			Cinematic still inspired by a 1990s coming-of-age film (no film title). Two women in their mid-20s, clearly adults, fully clothed, sit on the hood of a weathered teal pickup truck parked on a gravel road at dusk. One wears a faded denim jacket with a small subtle rainbow patch on the sleeve; the other wears a brown-and-red flannel shirt and high-waisted jeans. They sit close, facing slightly toward each other with quiet, wistful expressions—emotional but restrained. Background: low rolling hills, a distant white church silhouette, telephone poles receding into the distance, lavender-to-deep-blue dusk sky. Warm backlight from the setting sun with gentle rim light, cool foreground shadows, soft film grain, shallow depth of field, 35mm film look, muted earth tones and slight desaturation, medium-wide eye-level composition, rule-of-thirds, melancholic-but-hopeful atmosphere, photorealistic editorial still.	In a quiet 1990s Midwestern town, a rebellious teenage girl grapples with her identity after being sent to live with conservative relatives—finding solace in the open fields, forbidden friendships, and the freedom she carves for herself beneath the wide, unjudging sky.		Beneath the Wide Sky		